

TIPS FOR TALKING TO TEENS ABOUT VAPING

E-cigarette use, commonly referred to as vaping, by Maine youth has significantly increased over the past few years, with 15.6% of high school students reporting they currently use these products.

Talking to youth about vaping can help keep them from starting or assist in connecting them to treatment services.

Know the Facts

Research information about e-cigarettes and youth; this could include the US Surgeon General Website or community presentations

Be a Good Listener

Remember, your goal is to have a conversation, not to deliver a lecture. Gently correct misperceptions after they have finished speaking.

Have Open and Honest Conversations

Ask what they think. Maintain a balance of information, positive reinforcement, and negative reinforcement.

Set a Good Example

Be a positive example by remaining tobacco-free. If you need support contact 1-800-QUIT-NOW or MaineQuitLink.com.
