TIPS FOR TALKING TO TEENS ABOUT VAPING

E-cigarette use, commonly referred to as vaping, by Maine youth has significantly increased over the past few years, with 15.6% of high school students reporting they currently use these products.

Talking to youth about vaping can help keep them from starting or assist in connecting them to treatment services.

Know the Facts

Research information about e-cigarettes and youth; this could include the US Surgeon General Website or community presentations

Be a Good Listener

Remember, your goal is to have a conversation, not to deliver a lecture. Gently correct misperceptions after they have finished speaking.

Have Open and Honest Conversations

Ask what they think. Maintain a balance of information, positive reinforcement, and negative reinforcement.

Set a Good Example

Be a positive example by remaining tobacco-free. If you need support contact 1-800-QUIT-NOW or MaineQuitLink.com.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

FOR YOUTH PROVIDERS

While the decision to quit tobacco is always one teens must make themselves, there are several ways you can help them on their journey.

- Let teens know you are concerned about the impact of tobacco use, including vaping, on their current and long-term health.
- Tell them you want to help support them and ask if they'd like to be connected to support such as My Life, My Quit.
- Be sure to mention that My Life, My Quit is free, confidential and was designed by teens for teens. They do not need to have a caregiver's permission to sign up and no personal information will be shared with their caregivers.
- If they are not willing to enroll right away, provide them with information about how to connect and let them know they have support to help them quit when they are ready.
- If a teen is ready to quit, they can text, call or enroll online. As a trusted provider, you can also help them connect to My Life, My Quit services by referring them online.
